These students:
- struggle to understand simple conversations and simple discussions even when the topics are familiar and the speaker uses linguistic supports (e.g., visuals, slower speech and other verbal cues, gestures)
- struggle to identify and distinguish individual words and phrases during social and instructional interactions that have not been intentionally modified for ELLs
- may not seek clarification in English when failing to comprehend the English they hear; frequently remain silent, watching others for cues

These students:
- usually understand simple or routine directions, as well as short, simple conversations and short, simple discussions on familiar topics; when topics are unfamiliar, require extensive linguistic supports and adaptations (e.g., visuals, slower speech and other verbal cues, simplified language, gestures, preteaching to preview or build topic-related vocabulary)
- often identify and distinguish key words and phrases necessary to understand the general meaning (gist) during social and basic instructional interactions that have not been intentionally modified for ELLs
- have the ability to seek clarification in English when failing to comprehend the English they hear by requiring/requesting the speaker to repeat, slow down, or rephrase speech

These students:
- usually understand longer, more elaborated directions, conversations, and discussions on familiar and some unfamiliar topics, but sometimes need processing time and sometimes depend on visuals, verbal cues, and gestures to support understanding
- understand most main points, most important details, and some implicit information during social and basic instructional interactions that have not been intentionally modified for ELLs
- occasionally require/request the speaker to repeat, slow down, or rephrase to clarify the meaning of the English they hear

These students:
- understand longer, elaborated directions, conversations, and discussions on familiar and unfamiliar topics with only occasional need for processing time and with little dependence on visuals, verbal cues, and gestures; some exceptions when complex academic or highly specialized language is used
- understand main points, important details, and implicit information at a level nearly comparable to native English-speaking peers during social and instructional interactions
- rarely require/request the speaker to repeat, slow down, or rephrase to clarify the meaning of the English they hear
ELPS-TELPAS Proficiency Level Descriptors Grades K–12 Speaking

Advanced High

Advanced high ELLs have the ability to speak using grade-appropriate English, with minimal second language acquisition support, in academic and social settings.

- are able to participate in extended and complex academic discussions on familiar topics with only occasional disruptions, hesitations, or pauses for clarification.
- can use a wide variety of vocabulary, including academic, technical, and idiomatic language.
- have a well-developed understanding of English grammar, including complex sentence structures and the use of a full range of verb tenses.
- make errors that interfere somewhat with overall communication.
- may mispronounce words, but rarely use pronunciation that interferes with overall communication.

Advanced

Advanced ELLs have the ability to speak using grade-appropriate English, with second language acquisition support, in academic and social settings.

- are able to participate in extended discussions on familiar topics with occasional disruptions and occasional need for clarification.
- can use English grammar to communicate effectively and express ideas clearly and coherently.
- have a good understanding of basic grammar, including simple sentence structures and common verb tenses.
- make second language acquisition errors that may hinder overall communication.
- may mispronounce words, but use pronunciation that can usually be understood by people accustomed to interacting with ELLs.

Intermediate

Intermediate ELLs have the ability to speak in a simple manner using English commonly heard in routine academic and social settings.

- can speak in short sentences and use basic vocabulary needed in everyday interactions.
- can communicate effectively with people who are familiar with English.
- have an emerging awareness of English grammar, including use of simple sentence structures and basic verb tenses.
- may make second language acquisition errors that may hinder overall communication.
- may mispronounce words, but use pronunciation that can usually be understood by people accustomed to interacting with ELLs.

Beginning

Beginning ELLs have the ability to speak using single words or short phrases in response to simple questions and directions.

- can use a limited vocabulary in simple, everyday situations.
- have limited understanding of English grammar, including basic verb tenses.
- may make second language acquisition errors that interfere with overall communication.
- typically use pronunciation that significantly interferes with communication.

Beginning English language learners (ELLs)

Beginning ELLs have little or no ability to speak English in academic and social settings.

- can only use single words or short phrases.
- lack the knowledge of English grammar necessary to construct basic sentences.
- have difficulty understanding and using a wide range of vocabulary.
- may mispronounce words, but use pronunciation that can usually be understood by people accustomed to interacting with ELLs.

These students:

- mainly speak using single words and short phrases consisting of recently practiced, memorized, or highly familiar material.
- speak using a very limited bank of high-frequency, high-need, concrete vocabulary, including key words and phrases needed for daily communication.
- lack the knowledge of English grammar necessary to connect ideas and speak in sentences; can sometimes produce sentences using recently practiced, memorized, or highly familiar material.
- exhibit second language acquisition errors that may hinder overall communication when trying to use complex or less familiar English grammer structures.
- use pronunciation that can usually be understood by people accustomed to interacting with ELLs.

These students:

- are able to express simple, original messages, speak using sentences, and participate in short conversations and classroom interactions; may hesitate frequently and for long periods to think about how to communicate desired meaning.
- speak simply using basic vocabulary needed in everyday social interactions and routine academic contexts; rarely have vocabulary to speak in detail.
- exhibit an emerging awareness of English grammar and speak using mostly simple sentence structures and simple tenses; are most comfortable speaking in present tense.
- exhibit second language acquisition errors that may hinder overall communication when using complex or less familiar English grammar structures.
- use pronunciation that can usually be understood by people accustomed to interacting with ELLs.

These students:

- are able to participate in extended and complex academic discussions on familiar topics with only occasional disruptions, hesitations, or pauses for clarification.
- can use a wide variety of vocabulary, including academic, technical, and idiomatic language.

Typical writing features at this level:
- Nearly comparable to writing of native English-speaking peers in clarity and precision with regard to English vocabulary and language structures, with occasional exceptions when writing about academically complex ideas, abstract ideas, or topics requiring low-frequency vocabulary.
- Occasional difficulty with naturalness of phrasing and expression.
- Errors associated with second language acquisition are minor and usually limited to low-frequency words and structures; errors rarely interfere with communication.

These students:

- Beginning
  - Derive little or no meaning from grade-appropriate stories read aloud in English, unless the stories are
    - read in short “chunks”
    - controlled to include the little English they know such as language that is high-frequency, concrete, and recently practiced
    - accompanied by ample visual supports such as illustrations, gestures, pantomime, and objects and by linguistic supports such as careful enunciation and slower speech
  - Begin to recognize and understand environmental print in English (e.g., signs, labeled items, names of peers, logos)
  - Have difficulty decoding most grade-appropriate English text because they *
    - understand the meaning of very few words in English
    - struggle significantly with sounds in spoken English words and with sound-symbol relationships due to differences between their primary language and English

- Intermediate
  - Demonstrate limited comprehension (key words and general meaning) of grade-appropriate stories read aloud in English, unless the stories include
    - predictable story lines
    - highly familiar topics
    - primarily high-frequency, concrete vocabulary
    - short, simple sentences
    - visual and linguistic supports
  - Regularly recognize and understand common environmental print in English (e.g., signs, labeled items, names of peers, logos)
  - Have difficulty decoding grade-appropriate English text because they *
    - understand the meaning of only those English words they hear frequently
    - struggle with some sounds in English words and some sound-symbol relationships due to differences between their primary language and English

- Advanced
  - Demonstrate comprehension of most main points and most supporting ideas in grade-appropriate stories read aloud in English, although they may still depend on visual and linguistic supports to gain or confirm meaning
  - Recognize some basic English vocabulary and high-frequency words in isolated print
  - With second language acquisition support, are able to decode most grade-appropriate English text because they *
    - understand the meaning of most grade-appropriate English words
    - have little difficulty with English sounds and sound-symbol relationships that result from differences between their primary language and English

- Advanced High
  - Demonstrate, with minimal second language acquisition support and at a level nearly comparable to native English-speaking peers, comprehension of main points and supporting ideas in grade-appropriate stories read aloud in English
  - With some exceptions, recognize sight vocabulary and high-frequency words to a degree nearly comparable to that of native English-speaking peers
  - With minimal second language acquisition support, have an ability to decode and understand grade-appropriate English text at a level nearly comparable to native English-speaking peers *

* The last descriptor applies only to students who are at the developmental stage of decoding written text (i.e., they have “cracked the code” necessary for learning to read).
